INSEAD

The 2nd Annual
Transcultural Leadership Award Dinner
28 April 2008

“A new era of leadership has become the centerpiece of global business. Transcultural leaders will usher their companies into new markets, drive growth and social responsibility, and perhaps most important, set the stage for future success.”

J. Frank Brown, Dean of INSEAD

INSEAD

The Business School
for the World

The INSEAD Award for Transcultural Leadership was established in 2007 by Dean J. Frank Brown to annually recognize those who believe, as we do at INSEAD, in the importance and the necessity of working across cultures.

Transcultural Leadership is at the core of our mission.

At INSEAD, participants in the MBA, EMBA and Executive programs represent 70 different nationalities. By design, there is no one dominant culture.

At INSEAD, there is an environment of genuine transcultural interaction. Participants engage with each other, a diverse faculty and an international staff to learn from and about one another. INSEAD – one of the world's top business schools – is a unique place where international perspectives and global awareness form the basis of a rich, transcultural business education.
