Dior et moi / Frédéric Tcheng – 2015
Languages: English, French, Italian, Dutch
Subtitles: English, French, Dutch
DVD (367)

Frédéric Tcheng's fascinating documentary looks at the attempts by the Belgian fashion designer Raf Simons to revitalise Christian Dior with his first haute-couture collection. For all his seeming calm, Simons grows increasingly emotional as time runs out to complete the collection.

Anton Tchekhov 1890 / René Féret – 2015
Languages: French
Subtitles: English, French
DVD (368)

The famous Russian playwright and master of the short story is brought to understated yet expressive life in French director René Féret's biopic. Much of the film’s success depends on the strength of Giraud as a performer.

Suffragette / Sarah Gavron – 2016
Languages: English, French
Subtitles: French
DVD (369)

A more conventional film about the fight for suffrage could easily have riled us up with a portrait of bygone oppression and then congratulated us on the progress we’ve made. But this one has an argument to make, or rather a series of arguments about the workings of patriarchal power, the complexities of political resistance and the economic implications of the right to vote.
